NEW YORK STATE A GOOD ALIENIST

Homer Folks Says Its Care of the Insane is a Big Job Well Done and System is Satisfactory.

In connection with consideration by the Constitutional Convention of proposed amendments to provisions of the constitution affecting the insane, the State Charities Aid Association is distributing to delegates to the convention and other persons interested copies of a lecture entitled "The State as Alienist," which Homer Folks, secretary of the association, delivered at the New York School of Philanthropy in 1912.

A Big Job Well Done.

The pamphlet reviews the operation of New York's system of state care of the insane since 1890 and contains an analysis of the conditions now confronting the system of state hospitals. The lecture embodies Mr. Folks' personal observation and intimate knowledge of the operation of state care throughout that period. On the whole, he estimates state care as "a big job well done."

He points out a number of new lines of effort in which the state should engage, emphasizing particularly the importance of preventing insanity as far as possible.

He does not find anything to warrant a radical change in the system, such as some of the proposed amendments before the Constitutional Convention would provide for.

The State's Biggest Task.

He declares that looking at the state government as it is in daily operation its greatest task is the present activity, measured in terms of expenditure, employees and a number of persons directly affected, is the care of the insane. About one-seventh of the current revenues of the state are expended for this purpose. Thirty-nine per cent of the 16,087 persons in state employ are employed in connection with the state hospitals. An average population of between 23,000 and 34,000 insane persons is maintained by and under the control of the state. This is about one to each 182 of the entire adult population of the state.

The Acid Test of Workableness.

Applying the acid test of experience and efficiency to the system of state care, the writer declares that the state houses its insane and their caretakers reasonably well; that it feeds the insane adequately; that it provides competent nurses for the insane; that it places its insane under as skillful medical treatment as the medical profession affords, and that it carries on the enormous undertaking of caring for 33,000 irresponsible persons "substantially without scandal and substantially on a non-political basis."

57 Cents per Capita Cost.

Regarding the economy with which the work is done, there is this: "The state takes care of these sick persons, a considerable number being acutely ill and requiring constant attention, and the total cost for all purposes, including physicians, nurses, food, everything except buildings, even in these days of the high cost of living, amounted last year to some 57 cents per day per capita. Certainly the admittedly high standards of food and care with this low per capita cost exclude any possibility of serious waste."

Institutions Overcrowded 22 Per Cent.

On the debit side of the account, it is pointed out that the state has not remedied the overcrowding that has long existed in the state hospitals for the insane. These fourteen institutions are now overcrowded to the extent of 22.8 per cent. They have a certified capacity of about 27,000 and contain over 33,000. To provide accommodations for this excess of 6,000 patients would require an expenditure of approximately $6,000,000, or $1,000 a bed. Furthermore, the net increase in the insane population of the state is from 600 to 1,000 persons a year, so that the need of additional facilities for the insane has become one of the most pressing problems of the state.

Mr. Folks believes that the process of commitment to state hospitals could be improved by the state taking that over instead of delegating it to the health officers of the various municipalities as at present. "It seems to me almost self-evident," he says, "that the agency which has all the experience gained from the treatment of the insane should utilize that experience and knowledge to the utmost degree at the point at which it is needed most, that is, at the point of admission of those in whom mental disorder has just appeared or is becoming apparent."

No Glad Hand For Insane Aliens.

Discussing the future of the state hospital system, it is urged that the first duty of the state is to wipe out the 22 per cent of overcrowding. Secondly, it should "take more serious thought and exert its influence with the Federal authorities more urgently and continuously to protect itself from becoming a refuge for the insane from other countries. However welcome an undefined number of able-bodied and normal-minded immigrants may be, we cannot afford to extend the glad hand of welcome to the insane. There is no reason for the state of New York to continue to maintain for an indefinite period thousands of insane persons who might have been readily reconditioned and excluded by an adequate, technically-qualified service at Ellis Island."

Preventing Insanity is Important.

The lecturer advocates that the state undertake adequate work for the prevention of insanity, as well as for its treatment, after it has developed. This, he believes, would not only be a humane undertaking but would result in a great financial saving to the state. In that connection, he urges the establishment of more psychopathic hospitals and more mental dispensaries or clinics where persons suffering from mental disease may receive advice and treatment from the same as patients suffering from ordinary diseases do in the dispensaries of general hospitals. He recommends that the state develop further its parole system, so that more of the patients in the state hospitals may be returned to their homes, there to be under such periodic medical and nursing supervision as their condition requires during their period of complete convalescence. He emphasizes the importance of social service as a connection with such cases and declares that after-care workers employed by the state are necessary to make the parole system vital and effective and to enable the hospitals to do their whole duty by paroled patients.

The Popular Attitude Toward Insanity.

Regarding the attitude of the public to insanity, the lecturer has this to say: "The community has been wrongly educated in regard to insanity. It needs to be re-educated as to the causes of insanity so that the average individual will realize that it does not come down like lightning from heaven, striking whom it will, but that it grows out of individual habits long continued; that even if inherited, it is still to a substantial degree under the control of the individual as to the time nature and seriousness of its manifestations. The community needs re-educating as to the possibility of diminishing the amount of insanity (it is estimated that approximately 40 per cent of insanity is preventable); as to the stigma or disgrace supposed to be attached to commitment for mental disease; as to the fact that a great majority of the insane are not dangerous and violent; that state hospitals are places where more care is given to have patients discharged than to have them committed, and that kindness is the rule and brutality the exception in hospital wards."

In conclusion, Mr. Folks declares that as alienist the state has made a very creditable performance, but that it still has a long way to go in extending its work to cover the field of prevention, as well as providing humane care and intelligent cure for the mentally ill.

HOW TO PRODUCE CLEAN MILK.

Methods More Important than Equipment in Producing Good Milk.

Methods are more important than equipment in producing high grade milk, according to a reading course lesson entitled "The Production of Clean Milk," recently issued by the New York State College of Agriculture. A man may have an inexpensive cow stable, but if he keeps it clean, he can produce clean milk. It is enough before milking to allow the dust to settle, wipe the cow's udders with a damp cloth before milking, and handles the milk in a sanitary way in sterilized utensils, he can produce clean milk.

These facts, so the college says, are of particular importance to milk producers in the state because of the requirements of the milk ordinance that went into effect January 1, 1915. This ordinance requires all milk intended for retail delivery in any city or village to be graded according to the health of the cows; the sanitary condition of the dairy barn and in the milk house, as determined by the dairy score; the bacteria content of the milk or cream; and whether the milk or cream has been pasteurized. A copy of the score card used in enforcing this ordinance is included in the publication on a perforated sheet so that it may be torn out and used in scoring a dairy.

The college lays particular emphasis on the construction and the care of dairy utensils and gives figures to show that at least two-thirds of the bacteria sometimes present in milk may be excluded by using a small top milk pail. All creamers and other dairy utensils should be well flushed with suds, it is stated; otherwise bacteria will collect in these places and contaminate each fresh lot of milk put into the utensil. All utensils used should be rinsed in lukewarm water, then washed with a brush, not a cloth, in a strong solution of washing powder and hot water, and then either thoroughly scalded with boiling water or better still, sterilized in steam.

Any resident of New York state may obtain this reading course lesson by applying to the state college of agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York.

Kingston W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The Kingston W. C. T. U. will hold its last meeting until fall at the parlors of St. James' Methodist Episcopal Church on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A lifelong friend of Miss Frances E. Willard will be present and will speak of the early life of Miss Willard. In addition, there will be a fine musical program, consisting of a duet by Mrs. Keefe and Mrs. Kraft; piano solo by Miss Hogeboom; solo with guitar accompaniment by Mrs. Mott, of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Weed, president of the society, will have charge of the meeting, and readings will be given by Miss Merritt. All members are urged to make a special effort to be present.

AUSTRIANS PREDICT EARLY SUCCESSES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Austrian General Headquarters, via Vienna, Berlin and Amsterdam, June 30.—"Within a week all the Russians will be out of Austria."

This was the prediction made by Field Marshal Conrad von Hotzen-dorf, chief of the general staff of the Austrian army, who arrived at headquarters on Tuesday.

Flushed with success four gigantic Austro-German armies are driving forward and the impetus of their onrush is serving to push the Russians back all along the line.

Just now the fiercest fighting is raging in the great marshland north of the Dniester river, which is roughly bounded at the corners by Brzezany, Zloczow, Rohatyn and Busk. At some places the swampy meadow lands making up this tract is crossed by ranges of hills and many of these are crowned by batteries of Russian guns which vainly thunder in an effort to stem the heading advance of the veterans under Archduke Frederick, General Pflanzer, Gen. von Linsingen and Gen. von Boehm-Ermolli.

The Austrians and Germans who stormed Brustyn and Firlejow when they swept over the Gnila Lipa river are now engaged in mastering the Russian line, a thirty mile line east of that stream.

Urged on by the exhortations of their generals the German and Austrian engineers have worked night and day laying down corduroy roads and building bridges across the sluggish tributaries of the Gnila Lipa and Petyr rivers over which ponderous guns are being painfully dragged. In their flight the Russians were compelled to abandon some of their artillery for the heavy pieces sank into the mud above the wheels and even teams of thirty and forty horses and powerful tractor engines could not wade them. So enormous was the number of wounded and so vast has been the demand for ammunition at the front that, despite the desires of the generals it has been impossible to transport all the wounded troops and Russian prisoners to the rear and many are lying in the front. Thousands of farm houses have been converted into temporary hospitals, where such relief as is possible is given the wounded, the German, Austrian, Hungarian or Slav.

The Russians have proved no mean foe and the Austro-German troops had to fight with heroic courage to overcome the resistance of Grand Duke Nicholas's men.

The Russian prisoners have spoken in tones of wonder about the mighty bombardments launched against their positions by the Austro-German forces. And well they might. For weeks by day and night the gigantic howitzers of the Teutonic allies have been roaring all along the front, from the San river in the north down past Lemberg clear to the lower reaches of the Dniester river. It is impossible to say how many millions of tons of steel have been hurled against the Russian lines.

Brustyn, the capture of which was officially announced on Tuesday, contains the chateau of Prince Jablonowski, a rugged, historic edifice. In the belief that the turret was being used by the Russians as an artillery observation post the Austrians threw a few shells against it and it soon crumbled beneath the fire.

Never in the history of the world have such widespread and efficient preparations been made for a campaign as the battering-ram drive which drove the Russians from the Carpathians and lessened their hold upon Austria. At the army headquarters forward armies of engineers, built railroads for the transportation of supplies, felled forests for the making of roads and erected bridges over the streams.

Whole towns have been smashed, forests have been leveled and the earth blasted into deep craters where shattering salvos were turned against the Russian redoubts. In the north and northeast the Austro-German forces under Gen. von Mackensen, the Napoleon of the Galician campaign have driven the Russians back upon their own soil and the efforts of the troops in the south are now concentrated to duplicate the feat of von Mackensen. South of Halicz the Russians are about 55 miles within Austrian soil but further to the south they have been driven out of Bukovina.

The standard of the two Kaisers will soon be flying upon Russian soil all the way from the Baltic to the borders of Roumania, according to the confident belief of all the officers with whom I talked. Little is heard here of the proposed drive against Warsaw from the south but the Russian forces that fled across the Tagew, San and Buk rivers are in flight northward which naturally leads the veterans of von Mackensen toward the Polish capital.

Among the rank and file the most peculiar ideas prevail as to the outcome of the present drive. Some of the soldiers believe they will soon be in the Russian capital. "We will saddle our horses in the Czar's palace" boasted one Hungarian trooper. The Russian losses which are being increased heavily every day are believed to be in the neighborhood of half a million men not counting the prisoners. Tens of thousands of Galician peasant folk are homeless in the district over which the great battle has raged so long. But in some cases peasants have remained and amidst the din and crash of battle have gone about the work of farming their cabbage fields. They are without horses or cattle, however, for all these were carried away by the Co-

STORM DAMAGE IN MISSISSIPPI

By Telegram to The Freeman. Memphis, Tenn., June 30.—Four persons are known to have been drowned and damage estimated at $250,000 resulted from a wind and rain storm that swept Northern Mississippi along the Mississippi river last night.

At Ackerman, Miss., Mrs. D. Miller and her 15 year old daughter were drowned in a creek they attempted to cross. Two negroes were drowned near Charleston. Fifty thousand acres of young cotton are under four feet of water in Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee. Reports from Sumner county, Tenn., today said that the flood from the Cumberland river will equal the disastrous flood of 1865.

Mr. Stewart to Speak. The Hon. Oliver Wayne Stewart, former member of the Illinois legislature, will speak here Sunday, July 11, at 3 p. m. in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, under the auspices of the "Flying Squadron Foundation."

Mr. Stewart was one of the members of "The Flying Squadron of America" in the greatest campaign ever attempted for nation-wide temperance. The squadron visited 260 places in 225 days and traveled more than 60,000 miles. Local people are greatly interested in the coming of Mr. Stewart and a large attendance is expected to turn out to hear one of the most eloquent speakers of the day and one of the best informed men of the times. The meeting will be an open mass meeting for men and women.

Choir Visits Reservoir. The choir and organist Arthur H. Snyder and Mrs. Snyder of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer were the guests of William Hiltbrand and Mrs. Hiltbrand on Tuesday evening, when the entire party numbering some twenty young people motored to the Ashokan Reservoir, and enjoyed a ride all around the great body of water. Crossing the high bridge at Traver's Hollow, the party espied, way down in the depths of the gorge, a party cooking and eating their supper, and though they could not see the campers themselves, they serenaded them in fine style. The party returned by moonlight after a long and remembered outing, fully appreciating Mr. Hiltbrand's kindness.

Escaped From Sing Sing. Ossining, N. Y., June 30.—Rocco Scalzo, an Italian serving a term of over six years for white slavery, escaped from Sing Sing prison during the night and it is believed he may be on his way to Toronto, where his wife and children reside. Scalzo was a paver and bricklayer and had been employed about the grounds outside the walls. He had served about half his term. He was arrested in Rochester and was transferred from Auburn to Sing Sing on March 13, 1913. The charge against him was having brought a 14 year old girl from Italy with the intention of taking her to Rochester for immoral purposes.

Dry Gains In Utah. Salt Lake City, Utah, June 30.—Four large towns in Utah remain dry and two others will move from the wet to the dry column as the result of yesterday's option elections in the state. Logan, Provo, Richmond and Smithfield continue dry and Farmington and Marysville, both wet, become dry. Milford will continue wet and Phoenix a new town in Bingham Canyon voted to have saloons. There was a tie vote at Gunnison, which will remain dry unless the vote is changed by an official count.

Dry Forces Win. Kokomo, Ind., June 30.—A complete count on yesterday's option election showed the dry forces the winner by 133 votes.

U. S. SUBMARINE RUNS ASHORE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

San Francisco, Cal., June 30.—The United States submarine H. 3, which went ashore five miles south of Point Sur last night was still holding together early today, according to a wireless message received at Mare Island. The message stated that unless she was pounded upon the rocks too violently during the morning, the submarine would be floated out safely at high tide early this afternoon.

In a dense fog, the H. 3, which was two hours ahead of the submarine tender Cheyenne, its convoy, left its course on the way from San Diego to San Francisco and struck on the rocks. The Cheyenne approached near enough to communicate by submarine telephone, and Lieutenant William P. Newton, commander of the submarine, reported that the frame of the craft was undamaged and that she appeared to be resting on an easy bed without pounding to any great extent. Nineteen men and Lieutenant Newton are aboard the H. 3.

The text of the communique follows: "In the region to the north of Arras the night was marked by a violent cannonade and some infantry engagements. To the north of the Chateau de Curleu we made a slight advance. To the south of the Red Inn a German attack was repulsed. "In the Vosges the Germans about 2 a. m. attempted a new attack against our positions to the east of Metzeral, which was easily broken up."

GERMAN REPLY STILL UNCERTAIN

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, June 30.—Unofficial reports from Berlin today that the German foreign office is working on four different drafts of a reply to President Wilson's representations on the Lusitania tragedy and forecasts as to contents of the note finally to be sent are premature, brought little concern to administration officials. They intimated they would stand by Ambassador Gerard's report that the German reply would be satisfactory to the position of the U. S. at least as long as the American envoy did not amend his statement. It was pointed out that the ambassador's forecasts on previous communications from the German government since the differences arose over the war zone operations, always were borne out by the official texts.

In fact, officials let the impression go out today that they have reason to believe it is the purpose of the German admiralty to remove as far as possible the dangers to American life and property on the high seas. Intimations have come from Germany, it was reported, that the Kaiser's government now is making efforts to avoid attacks on ships flying the American flag. It is admitted by the state department that the Berlin authorities are being advised of the sailing from ports of the U. S. of American ships with an estimate of the probable time these ships will pass through the war zone.

Meanwhile officials state they would not be surprised if the German foreign office should concede the humanitarian principles laid down by the U. S. relative to the Lusitania horror and would admit liability for reparations for the loss of American lives when this ship was sunk. This was stated, would go a long way toward clearing up the differences between the Berlin and Washington governments and pave the way for the adjustment of the submarine warfare matter.

In this connection the belief prevails in official quarters that the count-proposals made at ports of the U. S. of American ships with an estimate of the probable time these ships will pass through the war zone. Meanwhile officials state they would not be surprised if the German foreign office should concede the humanitarian principles laid down by the U. S. relative to the Lusitania horror and would admit liability for reparations for the loss of American lives when this ship was sunk. This was stated, would go a long way toward clearing up the differences between the Berlin and Washington governments and pave the way for the adjustment of the submarine warfare matter.

There still prevailed also a belief that the case of the sailing ship William P. Frye, sunk by the German commerce raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich, would be adjusted by diplomatic negotiations as demanded by the U. S. It was pointed out that as Germany has admitted that she must pay for the ship, this question cannot in reason be sent to prize court.

Officials, therefore, were strongly of the belief that the German foreign office will accede to this view and accept the American position. It was stated in some quarters that the prize court suggestion and the claims as to the treaty rights were put out by Germany more for the purpose of drawing out the views of this government and now that the U. S. has stated its position clearly and emphatically, the Kaiser may accept it.

Poisoned by Rock. Syracuse, June 30.—One man is near death in an Auburn hospital and 50 others are in a critical condition as a result of blood poisoning from a peculiar infection received by laborers working with a road gang near that city. Solid rock which the laborers are attempting to excavate is loaded with a germ of staphylococcus orus. Entering the body through cuts or abrasions, the germ eats its way through the system, causing great pain and eventually death.

Art at Eddyville. Albany, June 30.—Articles of incorporation were filed today with the secretary of state by Kemp, Lindberg & Beatty, Inc., of Eddyville to manufacture art embroideries, decorative linens, etc. The company has a capital stock of $200,000. The directors and incorporators are Demetrius A. Kemp, New York; John R. Lindberg, Brooklyn, and Walter Beatty, New York.

Fire in Middletown. Middletown, N. Y., June 30.—Four stores were badly damaged in a fire which partially destroyed two buildings here early today. The loss was $25,000.

FRENCH REPULSE GERMAN ATTACKS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, June 30.—German troops made a fierce attack at 2 o'clock this morning under cover of darkness in an effort to recapture the positions won by the French to the east of Metzeral in the Vosges but were repulsed, according to this afternoon's communique from the war office.

There was also infantry fighting in the region north of Arras, but the French were successful in the operations that took place there during the night.

The text of the communique follows: "In the region to the north of Arras the night was marked by a violent cannonade and some infantry engagements. To the north of the Chateau de Curleu we made a slight advance. To the south of the Red Inn a German attack was repulsed. "In the Vosges the Germans about 2 a. m. attempted a new attack against our positions to the east of Metzeral, which was easily broken up."

The governments of the Roman Catholic Church and the United States are now the two most powerful neutral agencies in the world and the two best fitted to attempt to restore tranquility in the Old World. Acting upon the belief that peace efforts must come from the outside, Swiss newspapers believe that the Vatican and the American government will jointly offer their offices as mediators or else suggest definite terms.

SECRET SERVICE
SEEKING DIAZ

By Telegram to The Freeman. El Paso, Tex., June 30.—Federal secret service agents were sent out today to trace Felix Diaz as a result of information that had reached the government authorities that he had arrived here last night and that he was involved in the scheme for an invasion of Mexico in connection with which Gen. Victoriano Huerta and Gen. Pascual Orozco have already been arrested.

The Federal agents refused to state whether they had a warrant for the arrest of Diaz on a charge of violating American neutrality, but the general rumor was current that if he was taken he would be arrested and compelled to give bond for his appearance. According to the reports reaching the government officials Diaz arrived last night and drove away from the station in a swift automobile. He was said to have come from San Antonio. Inquiries at various hotels during the night failed to reveal his presence.

Reports of the arrival of Diaz caused a flurry in Juarez and in Mexican circles of El Paso, second only to that resulting from the arrest of Huerta and Orozco on Sunday. Villistas declared that his presence here would confirm the report that all the foes of the parties now dominant in Mexico had united for the invasion of Mexico from American territory.

Spencer's Business School. John G. Bartsch, a graduate of the stenographic department, has secured a good business position as stenographer with Harry R. LeFever, optician, Fair street.

Miss Mae Archilli, a graduate in stenography, has obtained a position with the Paris millinery shop, Wall street.

John D. Mower, who has been pursuing the combined course of study at Spencer's, has secured a splendid office position with the Canfield Supply Company. This enterprising firm employs many Spencer graduates and all are giving satisfaction.

The Spencer baseball nine will cross bats with the fast Malden team at Malden-on-Hudson on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Spencer boys are having great success in winning many victories this year. The line up for Saturday will be as follows: T. Hauser, ss; J. McNellis, 3b; Earl DeWitt, c (captain); W. Fitzgerald, 2b; Fred Stout, 1b; Thomas Gorham, if (manager); A. Arguelles, cf; Arthur Hillis, rf; J. Feldman, p.

PREVENT FLIES BREEDING.

New and Safe Method of Destroying the Larvae.

A safe and effective weapon against the typhoid or house fly has been found in powdered hellebore by scientists of the department of agriculture. Flies lay their eggs chiefly in stable manure. Powdered hellebore mixed with water and sprinkled over the manure, will destroy the larvae which are hatched from the eggs. Since powdered hellebore is readily obtainable, this puts in the hands of everyone a remedy for one of the pests that has been found dangerous as well as troublesome. Powdered hellebore, however, will not kill adult flies, which must be swatted or trapped.

It has long been known that flies breed in manure but previous methods of destroying the larvae there by the use of strong chemicals have been open to the objection that the treatment under some conditions lessened the fertilizing value of the manure or actually injured vegetation. This is not true of powdered hellebore. Government experiments have shown that the hellebore is entirely decomposed in the course of the fermentation of the manure and that even in excessive quantities it does no harm except to the larvae it is intended to destroy. Chickens picking in manure treated with it suffer no ill effects.

One-half pound of powdered hellebore mixed with 10 gallons of water is sufficient to kill the larvae in 8 bushels, or 10 cubic feet, of manure. The mixture should be sprinkled carefully over the pile, special attention being paid to the outer edges. In most places hellebore is obtainable in 100-pound lots at a cost of 11 cents a pound. This makes the cost of the treatment a little less than seven-tenths of a cent per bushel of manure. A liberal estimate of the output of manure is two bushels a day per horse. The money involved is therefore, trifling in comparison with the benefits to the individual and the community from the practical elimination of the disease-spreading fly.

Although fresh manure is the favorite breeding spot, flies lay their eggs in other places as well, such as out-houses, refuse piles, etc. In these places, from which no manure is taken to spread on the fields, considerable saving may be effected through the substitution of borax for powdered hellebore. Applied at the rate of 0.62 pounds per 8 bushels of manure, borax is as effective as powdered hellebore in killing the larvae but costs less than half a cent for each bushel of manure treated. In larger quantities, however, or when the manure itself is spread at a greater rate than 15 tons to the acre, some damage to crops may result. Large quantities of manure are often used by market gardeners and others, and there is always danger of carelessness in applying the borax. The use of the more expensive but safer hellebore is therefore recommended for the treatment of manure. Borax is recommended for all other refuse in which flies may lay eggs.

Scientists who have been working for years to eliminate the fly are convinced that the use of one or the other of these simple measures is a public duty wherever manure and refuse exist. Sanitarians, however, strongly advise the removal of refuse heaps or other unnecessary rubbish or breeding places for flies. In breeding places which cannot be thus disposed of—such as manure or stables—the daily use of powdered hellebore will keep the flies from breeding in these favorite breeding grounds. The best results are obtainable in a community where everyone cleans up his premises, traps or kills the flies, and systematically treats the manure and other breeding places with powdered hellebore.

The fly is not only a nuisance to human beings and live stock; it spreads disease and filth and is a menace to public health which cannot be tolerated in the face of a demonstrated remedy. Details of the experiments with other information on the subject are contained in a professional paper, Bulletin 245 of the United States Department of Agriculture.

THE VLY.

AUTO TRUCK NEEDS SIREN MONOPOLY

The new auto truck occupied considerable time and attention at the meeting of the board of fire commissioners at the central fire station Tuesday evening. At this time the truck was formally accepted by the commissioners and the clerk authorized to make the payments on it when due. Mr. Bruse, whom the company has had in this city instructing the men, attended the meeting and said that there were three men in the fire department who are capable of handling the truck and a fourth one who with a little more instruction will also be able to handle it. Mr. Bruse has finished his work now and the truck is in the hands of the local firemen.

Attention was called to the inadequacy of the mains on Hurley avenue. The truck has been used on the high points along Lucas avenue and on Hurley avenue as a means for testing the availability of water in the mains for the high points. The only trouble was experienced on Hurley avenue where enough water could not be secured by the pump. The matter was placed before the superintendent of the water department and he said that as soon as possible an eight inch main would be laid in place of the four inch main which now exists and which would relieve the condition.

The new auto truck is equipped with a siren as are most of the auto trucks. A communication was sent to the common council asking that they pass an ordinance forbidding the use of sirens within the city limits except on the auto fire truck. The purpose of this is to prevent accident as far as possible. If there were other sirens in the city people would never think of the auto siren as they would if that had the only siren in the city. Other cities have made laws similar to this and have placed heavy fines for penalties.

A letter was also sent to the chief of police asking that he enforce the ordinance which gives to the fire department the right of way on their way to the fire.

Chief Chipp reported repairs to fire houses, inspection of places reported as fire traps, and the inspection of places selling fire works.

A communication was received from the Underwriter's Association, approving the work of the new auto truck in every respect.

Clerk Hornbeck reported that on May 25 there was $15,653.08 in the treasury. From this had been paid the semi-monthly payroll amounting to $552.22 and also $1,194.40 for other expenses, leaving a balance on hand of $13,906.46.

A communication was received from Chief Yates of the Schenectady fire department who was the guest of the fire commissioners while attending the convention here, thanking the commissioners for their hospitality and the entertaining manner in which he was received.

All the commissioners were present at the meeting.

NUGGETS OF NEWS.

Events of the Day Told of in Brief Items by Telegraph.

Whitestone, N. Y.—The Rev. E. E. Beauchamp, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, has begun painting the church. He said he did not want the church treasury depleted when he could do the work and still have time to prepare his sermons.

Winsted, Ct.—Fred Winters was digging a grave for one of his pigs which apparently had died when a terrific thunderclap startled him, and also the "dead" pig, which, gaining its feet, scrambled away.

White Plains, N. Y.—After Mrs. Alexander Milne had chased him from her home, a burglar twice entered the residence of Wilson F. Smith. On the first visit Smith disarmed the intruder, who fled. On the second visit Smith hurled the intruder from a second story window. He then escaped unhurt.

Proper Kitchen Sanitation

Many housewives who think that they are particular about their houses would be surprised to have their so called clean kitchens overhauled by an expert in sanitation. Let us start with the washing of the dishes. In most cases we will find a dish mop or a dish rag that has been used for weeks that contains dirt and germs galore. These should be boiled in lye water at least once a week. The nose is one of the greatest aids to sanitation, and all should heed it. Most persons think that a bad smelling dish rag is to be expected. But not so. It should be as sweet smelling as the face towel.

Then there is the garbage can. It should be scalded and set out in the sun every day. This is most important, as the can is the receptacle for all refuse, which is apt to decompose and become a menace to health unless carefully attended to. A great help in keeping the can clean is to line it with newspaper in such a way that nothing touches the can, being held by the paper. To dump the can merely lift the paper out. This will also lengthen the life of the can by keeping it dry.

The refrigerator is another germ catcher, unless kept clean. Baking soda is excellent for cleaning the interior of the refrigerator, as it both cleanses and sweetens. For the top, where the ice is kept, a strong solution of lye water, boiling hot, is the best to use. Empty the whole refrigerator, throw the lye water against the walls of the upper part. It will run down through the waste pipe, carrying all the slime with it. Follow this bath with one of plain hot water, then wash the lower part with hot soapsuds and soda. This should be done once a week.

The laundry tubs should be kept corked when not in use to prevent the rise of obnoxious gases. They should be kept as clean as the sink, and once a week a disinfectant should be poured down all soil pipes.

Many cooks will taste the food to see that it is properly seasoned and will return the spoon to the food. This is a very insanitary thing to do. If it is necessary to taste the food the spoon should be washed before being put back into the food.

The towels used to wipe the dishes should never be used more than one day without being scalded and dried in the sun. Many housekeepers use dish towels until they are positively dirty, not realizing the danger that attends such an action.

The kitchen floor should be mopped every day. A very fine housekeeper, noted for her thought of sanitary conditions, never swept her kitchen. Every morning after her kitchen work was done she mopped the floor with hot soapsuds. Then when it was still damp she took up with a dustpan and brush any particles that had remained after the mopping. In this way she avoided raising any dust to settle on her cooking implements.

Last, but by no means least, the range should be considered. Too often this is not clean enough to be sanitary. Grease collects easily, and eternal vigilance is the price of sanitation here. If the range is wiped off after every washing of dishes there need be no "big job" of cleaning the range, which so many housekeepers hate. The trouble is they let it go from day to day until it becomes a real task to clean it. The solution of the whole thing is to do a little each day, and then the work will not pile up, and in consequence the health of the whole family will be better.

Value of White Oilcloth.
White oilcloth can work a transformation in the darkest, dingiest kitchen and add to the charm of the brightest. A yard will save you from facing the indifferent or worn out paint at the base of the dish closet shelving, and besides, make cleaning easy and gratifying. The inside window ledge of the kitchen and the bathroom treated in this way will be conducive to beauty and cleanliness.

A strip along the wall beside the sink will catch splattered drops of dish water or drainings and may be readily cleaned with a lightly soaped cloth rubbed over the surface.

A stretch of oilcloth above the japanning about the range will catch any splattering grease, the vapor of steam or the blackest of escaping smoke, which can then be washed off, though here one of the coarse cleansers may be necessary to restore the pristine whiteness.

A yard of white oilcloth will cover the top of a kitchen table, with some to spare. A length of a few inches more of the scalloped kind will render the tops of the washtubs slightly and convertible to table uses. The top of the refrigerator covered in this way will be taken as a pledge of the sweet, clean interior below.

Porch Rugs.
Rag rugs for your porch can be bought anywhere at from $1.50 to $10, depending on the size and style. These rag rugs are much the best for porch use, as they are washable.

Keep plenty of flowers on the porch table, also all the new magazines, arranging them neatly on the top. If afternoon tea is to be served there daily, the tea tray can be kept on the table, too. These alterations will cost you very little and will transform your porch.

What a Girl Can Do.
One of the authorities was asked whether a girl can love two men at the same time. Probably not. But she can give a sufficiently lifelike imitation of the passion to fool both of the men.—Topeka Capital.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 30, 1915.

There has been a spirited debate in the Constitutional Convention over the question whether the section prohibiting the lease of agricultural lands for a period longer than twelve years shall be retained. This prohibition was designed to prevent a repetition of the famous anti-renter troubles, which only our oldest readers can remember, and the section has been handed down from one constitution to another ever since. A railroad or a building or almost anything else can be leased for 999 years, but a garden patch can be leased for but twelve years. This is a nonsensical plan, but lawyers are conservative by training, and they have most to say in the Convention. They are averse to dropping anything that is old and musty, however useless it may be. They still insist on putting the phrase "this indenture" in deeds, although there have been no indentures for generations. So, it is probable that the owner of farm lands will continue to be shut out from the rights held by other property owners. Fortunately, the discrimination is of but little practical importance.

Cardinal Gibbons has written a letter in which he expresses the belief that "the ballot would drag woman from her domestic duties into the arena of politics, and rob her of much of her charm, goodness and true influence." He adds that "participation in active political life is undoubtedly calculated to rob woman of all that is amiable and gentle, tender and attractive; to rob her of her innate grace of character, and give her nothing in return but masculine boldness and effrontery." These utterances are peculiarly significant because of their source. Everybody knows that under woman suffrage clergymen would have a hundred times more political influence than they have now. What the priest or dominie says is gospel to the average church-going woman, although men as a rule have no great confidence in the judgment of the clergy regarding secular matters. Here we see the greatest prelate of the most numerous denomination in this country declaring in substance that he does not want this power, since to get it the welfare of society must be injured. Some people think that the Catholics are trying to dominate this country politically, but this does not look like it. The Cardinal's example may well be followed by others of "the cloth."

There are fashions in war, just as there are in clothes, and in both cases it is common for antiquated styles to be resurrected. The use of poisonous gases was supposed to be dead beyond hope of revival, even the Chinese having abandoned the use of what was once their national weapon—the stinkpot. Yet the Germans have proved that gas can be made more terribly effective than it ever was. We have all read in our history books about "Greek fire," which was so much used in fighting centuries ago, but anyone who had predicted that it would cut a figure in this war would have been deemed crazy a few weeks ago. Nevertheless, the Germans are throwing on their enemies some substance which has all the characteristics of the fire employed by the Byzantine Greeks. It was also supposed that we had heard the last of armor such as was worn in crusading times and before, and which Mark Twain made such fun of in his "Annie at King Arthur's Court," but that was also a mistake, since the news comes from Paris that all the French infantry are being fitted out with helmets which completely protect the head and neck and which will turn aside shrapnel and sometimes even rifle bullets. Nothing in this line would surprise us now. Some use may yet be found for the crossbow and the tomahawk.

The war correspondents are unanimous in declaring that the German people are bitterly angry with Americans because the Allies have been getting ammunition from this country. The same feeling is prominent at all pro-German meetings here. We have never heard of any sentiment more utterly indefensible than this. The fact that Germany has not referred to this subject in the diplomatic correspondence between the two countries shows clearly that her officials are well aware that our manufacturers are well within their rights under international law and under the rules of good morals. German makers of arms and ammunition have in the past sold their products wherever they could, just as our people are doing now. Moreover, the Germans are now using ammunition composed partly of copper bought in the United States, and nobody has suggested that we stop selling copper for that reason. It is also worthy of note that at this moment Belgians are being compelled under threat of death to make ammunition to be used in killing their own relatives. If leading Germans had as much brains as their positions call for they would do something to destroy this idiotic notion which possesses their people. The war will be over some day, and those who are now sowing the seed of fantastic hatred will regret it.

THE CANARY.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

There are so many canary-lovers in the world and the bird has so long been a household pet that any scrap of information affecting the song or general well-being of the little prisoner must be acceptable. He has been known as a pet since the beginning of the sixteenth century, and while opinions vary as to the propriety of caging him for the sake of his song and beauty, his domestication has been made almost complete. And in return for the pleasure he gives in his life of captivity, the best, most intelligent care is none too good.

Everyone familiar with the canary and his food knows that hemp seed is regarded by him as a choice morsel, and with that knowledge comes the proviso—"but it makes him so fat he won't sing." And so the little fellow is kept from a food he needs for strength and a luxury he covets to give him the song spirit.

Perhaps the recital of an individual experience may throw some light on the canary's needs and his wants. As a matter of convenience, it happened that a woman assumed the care of a bird during his owner's absence for a long period. He came rejoicing in the name of "Tim," and the designation, "very pretty bird, but no singer." All his life he had been pronounced silent, only bursting into song upon rare occasions. In defiance of the usual, his owner had allowed him about a dozen hemp seeds each week, excusing herself on the ground that she owed him that in deference to his caged condition.

When the seeds were given him "Tim" was so manifestly happy and eager for the treat that his temporary guardian gained permission to exceed the meager apportionment. From that time he was given a dozen or so every morning.

Within a few days his little yellow majesty began to sing more and more and so enjoyed the seeds that the woman determined to learn upon what authority hemp seed was pronounced injurious to song, an invitation to drowsiness, even an early decline.

She consulted authorities enough to send her back home convinced that "Tim" might come into his own fully and freely. One rather bulky volume gave a rule, never to be deviated from, that "when a male bird is out of song he requires better food and more care than usual." The author refers to the silent bird as eating all day, but never being properly nourished because he is not allowed a sufficient supply of "meaty," rich food. Of course, he deprecates over-feeding of rich varieties, but he explodes the theory that hemp seed is fatal, and prescribes its use in moderation, to strengthen and give tone.

So "Tim, the Silent," in addition to the usual supply of mixed seeds, green stuff and other foods known to canaries, is now favored with from 20 to 30 hemp seeds a day, and the number sometimes jumps higher. And he sings, sings, sings from the first peep of the day till darkness closes his eyes for the night; and he has been singing for four years or more, with never a hint of bird-tribulation to come. Fed generously, he pays in glorious measure. Sing? Given the freedom of the room, he'll sit on one's finger or shoulder and warble his thanks for the care that is his, and if he dreams bird-dreams of the far-away home of his ancestors and of the freedom that was theirs the plaintive note never creeps into his song. Though, that's not to say that it is a kindly thing to shut the little fellow away for the poor sake of the pleasure he gives, and one fancies the time may come when cages will be all thrown away.

birthright when intelligently cared for. Many silent birds perhaps might be made to join the chorus with "Tim," who is gay as a lark the day long if their diet was considered more thoughtfully. The canary has the reputation of paying in sweet measure of song, for every seed or delicacy that administers to his comfort and happiness, and, incidentally to the pleasure of his owner. And don't let anyone believe that the canary is too insignificant to respond to human affection, attention and the like, for he does—and very royally.

Rank Meanness.

Charles F. Murphy, the New York leader, said the other day of a political advantage that had been seized by an opponent:

"It was a mean advantage. It reminded me in its rank meanness of Blancke." "As Blancke stood at the bar of Hogan's saloon, Noire entered and said cordially:

"Hello, Blancke, old man, have a drink?"

"No," said Blancke; "no, I don't care for another, but you can pay for this one I've just had, thanks."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Trickster.

John H. Finley, New York's brilliant commissioner of education, said in Albany, apropos of an argument on Bible reading in the schools:

"This argument is straightforward. It does not shift and jump and beat about the bush. It isn't like the trick school-boy."

"Which would you choose," his teacher asked this schoolboy, "the 10th or the 20th part of an apple?"

"The boy answered that he would choose the 20th part, and then, noting with his shifty eyes his teacher's frown, he added, hastily:

"I don't like apples, you know."—New York World.

As She Sees It.

Miss Anna Steinauer, Boston's policewoman, said the other day:

"My duties afford me shocking revelations. I am astonished at the number of Boston women who smoke. And for the men of Boston—well!" The fair policewoman smiled grimly and added: "How many, many a Boston wife brushes in the morning the billiard chalk from her husband's coat sleeves and thinks, with tears in her eyes, of the overtime the poor boy puts in nearly every evening as his dreary desk by the whitewashed wall!"—Boston Post.

Hard on Father.

Thomas A. Edison on his recent birthday, said:

"Shall I talk to you newspaper-boys about our wonderful American inventions or about our wonderful American extravagance? I disagree with John D. in most things, but I'm with him in his blame of our extravagance, waste and living beyond our means."

"In an Orange school, in celebration of one of my birthdays, a teacher asked a little girl:

"What is the most wonderful thing a man ever made?" "A living for his family," the little girl promptly answered."—New York Herald.

RIMINI'S HISTORY.

Ancient Ariminum an Adriatic Seaport, Figures in the War.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., June 30.—Among the seaports recently visited by the Austrian fleet, Rimini, ancient Ariminum, the Adriatic seaport opposite the diminutive republic of San Marino, is a city of typical Italian charm, a place intimately associated with the big events of early history, fascinating for the strange romances lived within its bounds, and filled with memories of those absorbing contradictions that go to make up the Italian temperament. This little port forms the subject of today's study in war geography issued by the National Geographic Society at Washington.

"Rimini, just below Pola, the Austrian naval base across the Adriatic, once an Umbrian colony, then an Etruscan port, and later acquired by Rome as a base against the Gauls, is a picturesque monument to the past rather than a place of present large importance. When growing Rome met Carthage for the mastery of the maritime world, Rimini became an important naval port. Here was stationed a Quæstor of the fleet, and from here the merchants of Dido's city were harried on their ventures through the Adriatic and Ionian Seas.

"The power of Rome reached through this port for the control of the Mediterranean, of earth's one great mercantile sea. Rimini is no longer a point of significant strategic value to the power on the Italian peninsula, but in Roman days it was a vital element in the plan by which the Latin city became the mistress of the world. The Via Flaminia terminated here, and the Via Aemilia started at his port. The best of military roads linked it to the master city.

"Augustus honored the city with a triumphal arch and a massive bridge of Istrian marble. In the forum here, Julius Caesar fired the enthusiasm of his soldiers after crossing the neighboring Rubicon, on his march against Rome and her senate. Early in the 6th century, the Goths were stayed without the gates of Rimini's fortifications, and later, Rimini became one of the 'five city league,' which included Pesara, Fano, Sinigaglia and Ancona.

"Fierocious, treacherous, vindictive, cultured, forceful and progressive, the great family of the Malatesta, the Wrongheads, so genuinely a product of whimsical, beautiful, contradictory Italia, came into power in Rimini during the twelfth century. Lords of the Castle of Verrucchio, the Wrongheads, brought forth in one of their violent race a character so wildly odd as to make the story of his life Rimini's master romance. Brave, generous, cruel, diabolical in his cunning and cynical strategy, strong, learned, half devil and half angel, and all the shades between, Sigismondo, most wrongheaded of all the Wrongheads, expressed the threefold soul of Italy, the Borgia, the Machiavelli, and the Dante.

"Sigismondo was a leader in the early Renaissance, a scholar and an artist. He built in 1438 the Castle, of which part remains, which was once held to be the strongest in Italy. He was active in promoting Europe's reawakening of spirit, in the reestablishment of a science and an art without the constraining bounds of the church. Yet he murdered three wives in succession, lived a life of unbridled lust, and was attacked by the church for a long list of black, violent offenses. However, the tribute that he paid to scholarship was genuine, and between intrigues, military duties and his crimes he spent his time with philosophers, savants and artists. He built the Church of St. Francesco at Rimini, a strange work of classic art, built by plunder, and sanctifying its odd builder, and, in appearance, more of a pagan temple than of a Christian church."

MANY MATTERS IN COUNTY COURT

County court reconvened this morning at the court house after its week's recess, for the purpose of hearing arguments and motions.

Alfred D. Van Buren moved for a stay of execution against the wages of the defendant in the case of the Sweet Briar Institute against William M. Martin. Mr. Martin has filed a petition in bankruptcy, said Mr. Van Buren, which acted as an adjudication and from that date the sheriff should be stopped from collecting anything on the execution, or the employer from paying anything to the sheriff.

The motion was opposed by Milton O. Auchmoody, attorney for the plaintiff, on the ground that the papers were insufficient in not showing that anything had been collected by the sheriff. Furthermore, the order for collection had been granted by the supreme court and a judge of the county court was without jurisdiction to entertain the present motion.

Judge Jenkins directed that briefs be filed by Saturday and stated he would hand down his decision next week.

Highland Burglary Case.

Moses Daly was arraigned by Assistant District Attorney Traver on an indictment charging him with burglary in the third degree, in entering the Highland Knitting Mill on October 8, 1914, in company with Arthur Cashdollar and Fred Whitney. Daly entered a plea of not guilty and said that A. D. Lent was his attorney. The case went over to the next term of county court.

Emerick Indictment Dismissed.

Frank W. Brooks moved the dismissal of the indictment against Clarence E. Emerick for manslaughter.

Assistant District Attorney Traver said the court was fully familiar with the facts; the case had been tried once and the jury had disagreed. The district attorney's office had been advised by the complainant that Emerick had made restitution to her so far as restitution was possible by the payment of a substantial sum of money, and so far as she was concerned she was willing to have all further proceedings stopped and the indictment dismissed.

In view of the fact that the jury had disagreed on the first trial, that the facts as brought out on that trial had indicated that "the defendant had no intention to bring about the result which had followed his act, and on account of his subsequent action, The People felt constrained to join in the application."

Judge Jenkins directed that the indictment be dismissed and that Emerick's bond be cancelled.

Bail Fixed for Griffin.

Assistant District Attorney Traver called attention to the fact that a commission had been appointed earlier in the term to examine into the sanity of Daniel Griffin of this city, against whom there had been two indictments for rape in the first degree.

Judge Jenkins said he had received the report of the commission, which found that Griffin was sane. Mr. Traver moved for confirmation of the commission's report, which was granted.

Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, Griffin's attorney, said that the defendant still entered a plea of not guilty and also of insanity, as he had done at the time of his arraignment. The court had no right to curtail any plea or right to which the defendant was entitled by the code. The reason for entering that plea was that the defendant's mind was in such a condition that he could not rationally outline any defense or consult with his counsel in regard to his defense. The case could not of course be tried at the present term, and Judge Jenkins directed that the case go over to the next term of county court.

Judge O'Reilly asked the court to fix bail for Griffin. He said that Griffin for a number of years had been an engineer in the employ of the New York Central Railroad Company and later for several years had been employed as an engineer at Steeplechase Park, Coney Island, where his former employers were holding his job open for him. They had written they would like to have him return to work this season. Except that he was addicted to drink, his reputation outside of the present charge was good. He was without funds and his family were practically dependent upon him for support. His mother was well along in years and he always had contributed to her support as well as the support of his children.

Mr. Traver in reply said that Judge O'Reilly had given Griffin a certificate of good character, which he could not endorse. So far as supporting his family was concerned, the information of the district attorney's office was that such support had been extremely slight and for the past year the family had been supported almost entirely by his daughter and by the Women's Federation. Instead of being well disposed to ward his family, he had on various occasions driven not only his children but his aged mother from the house and destroyed the furniture, and his family might be in danger if he should be free. There were two indictments against him, each for a very serious offense, and he asked that the court take these facts into consideration in fixing bail.

Judge Jenkins fixed Griffin's bail at $2,500.

Court then adjourned sine die.

Brooklyn Navy Yard.

The Brooklyn navy yard was established February 23, 1801, when the first land, twenty-three acres, was bought from one John Jackson for $40,000. The yard now comprises 144 acres and has a water front of nearly three miles, protected by a sea wall of granite.

JOY RIDERS MEET DISASTER.

Prightened at Results, Mr. Oliver's Farm Hands Disappear.

A wrecked automobile, a note on the garage door explaining how the machine came to be wrecked, and two missing farm hands, are the principal points on which hinge the story of an afternoon outing taken recently by two young men employed on the farm of Garret Oliver at Marletown. The wrecked automobile is the property of Ira Oliver, a son, who resides at home, and the machine was brought to Kingston today for repairs.

A day or so ago the Olivers decided to go for a short trip and they left the farm in charge of the two farm hands and informed them that if the family were not back by supper time they would find their supper on the kitchen table. The Olivers then left in Mr. Oliver's machine, leaving Ira Oliver's machine in the garage on the farm. Some time later that afternoon the young men found some spare time hanging heavy on their hands and their thoughts wandered to the automobile in the garage. One dared the other to take the machine out. One of the young men, who thought he could drive a car as good as Mr. Oliver, cranked the machine and the two got in the car and started off for a short trip. They navigated the danger of getting out of the garage and down onto the road and drove up the road and then turned around and drove for the farm, much elated with their success at driving the car.

As they turned into the road leading to the farm, however, their luck deserted them and in some manner they managed to strip the gears, stalling the machine on the road. They got down and made a careful examination but found that they were unable to repair the damage. How to get the machine up to and into the garage was a problem, but finally they hitched up a team of horses and hauled the car to the garage and ran it into the structure. Needless to say they were considerably frightened over their exploit in running an automobile and they hurried to their rooms and packed their clothing up and then going down to the kitchen they did not forget to eat their supper although they swallowed it in a hurry, fearing any moment that the Olivers would appear on the scene.

Before leaving one of them wrote a note stating that Mr. Oliver could keep the back wages due the farm hands to repair the damage and hung the note in a conspicuous place in the garage and then both disappeared, riding their bicycles.

Shortly after that the Olivers returned and found that the farm hands were missing, but that they had first eaten their supper. Going out to the garage they also found the note which explained the strange disappearance of the farm hands.

From what could be learned one of the farm hands was so scared over his exploit with the machine that he rode his bicycle down the river and was last heard of at Newburgh.

SMALLEST HOMESTEAD.

A Woman With a Farm That Cost Her Ten Cents.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio, appears the following interesting account of a woman who has a little farm that cost her ten cents:

"Miss Serena Helen Blue of Minnesota is the owner of the smallest government homestead. A few weeks ago she went to the U. S. Land Office at Cass Lake, Minnesota, and in return for 10 cents received a deed to her homestead, which is little less than a tenth of an acre in size."

"It is a triangular point of land jutting into Turtle Lake, and measures 189 feet long by 38 feet wide in its widest part. To comply with the Homestead Law she built a log house and lived in it for seventeen months. The law required her to cultivate at least 218 square feet of the 3,484 square feet in her homestead, but instead she cultivated nearly half the area and raised tomatoes, cabbage and clover."

"Miss Blue is twenty-seven years old, and in a letter to Farm and Fireside says: 'This fraction of land joins our farm here and, finding it was government land, I went on it knowing that such a beautiful spot would make an ideal summer resort, although a small one. I feel sure that some day it will be a valuable piece of land, and I can realize as much from it by renting cottages as a good many do on a full quarter section. The point has a mineral spring and also trees, some of which are balsam, spruce, basswood, birch and pine. There are numerous wild birds, including wild ducks, geese, partridge, grouse, loons as well as song birds. The partridges come to my cabin door.'"

Why Farmers Need Automobiles.

In an article in the current issue of Farm and Fireside, automobiles are taken up and discussed as labor-saving and time-saving devices. Following is an extract from the article showing how farmers need automobiles:

"No one class of men has more real need for a car than does the farmer. To most farmers a car is an investment, to most other men it is a luxury—at least a point must be stretched to figure out how it is really and truly an investment."

"The experience of a business man living some distance from his place of business will be interesting here. 'This car was a five-passenger touring car in the $1,500 class. It was driven an average of ten miles a day with three passengers. This car cost $1,500, and at the end of the three years sold for $600. The depreciation amounted to more than the first cost of some five-passenger cars. The repairs were made at commercial garages. This item of expense will be reduced to almost nothing by a farmer who cares for his own car. The labor charge at a garage is more than the cost of the repair parts itself, rates ranging from 50 cents to $1 an hour. I have a friend whose garage bill for the repair of his car was $14.15. On investigation he found that the

By Your Lathe

You need skill of hand, a keen eye and steady nerves, and when you get a crackerjack chew or smoke you know how it helps all three. Nothing like tucking good old LIBERTY into your pipe, or taking a man's size chew, to hold you steady and put gimp into the job.

LIBERTY

is a substantial, satisfying, healthful tobacco—made for real men who like the honest taste of real tobacco.

Manly men cannot get satisfaction out of insipid mixtures, any more than they can make a meal off of marshmallows. You go to LIBERTY to satisfy your tobacco hunger, just as you go to a beefsteak to satisfy stomach hunger.

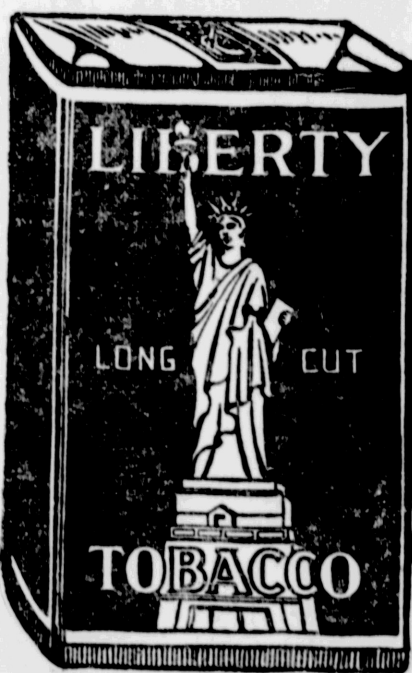

We make LIBERTY out of pure Kentucky leaf. We age it three to five years—so as to make it rich, ripe and mellow—naturally sweet, juicy and pleasing. It's got the snap and taste to it.

It's the big, two-fisted kind of men, the country's "finest" who use LIBERTY because it is the one tobacco that always satisfies them.

You try LIBERTY for a week, and you'll always keep it on the job.

Sold everywhere in 5c packages.

VETERAN IS RELEASED

Bobby Wallace Was Oldest Active Player in Major Leagues.

Let Out by St. Louis Browns as He Was Entering Twenty-First Year in Fast Company—Always Popular With the Fans.

Baseball lost one of its most popular idols when Robert J. Wallace, shortstop of the St. Louis Browns, was given his unconditional release. Wallace was the oldest active baseball player in the major leagues. He was entering this year on his twenty-second season as a professional player and his twenty-first as a major leaguer.

Had it not been for the baseball war and business conditions which have hit the sport hard, Bobby Wallace probably would have been carried by the Browns the remainder of the season, or, at least, until a berth as a minor league manager could be found for him. The necessity of cutting down, however, left Hedges little alternative but to let Wallace go at once.

Wallace, in his day, was considered by many critics to be the premier shortstop of baseball. He had a wonderful arm, and his ability to throw from any position and at almost any distance from short probably was unexcelled.

It was with Cleveland, in the old National league, that Wallace broke into big league baseball, 1895, and his most noteworthy feat was a throw in the final series between Cleveland and the Browns, in 1908, which cost his old teammates the flag. It was the third out in the ninth inning. A hit would have won for the Naps. Lajoie drove a sharp grounder over second. Wallace got the ball with his left hand on the dead run and, without stopping to set himself, threw Lajoie out at first, ending the game, which cost Cleveland the flag.

Wallace always was popular, even in 1910, when, as manager of the Browns, he was a failure.

This season, whenever he was in the game, he received a greater hand than any other player in St. Louis.

Wallace was born in Pittsburgh, November 4, 1874. He began his professional career at Franklin, Pa., in 1894.

Matty Through Years Ago.

Christy Mathewson was "through" as a major league pitcher thirteen years ago. If you don't believe it, read what was printed in Sporting Life in the fall of 1901:

"Danny" Green, of the Chicago White Sox, who was out on a barnstorming trip with Christy Mathewson, the Giants' youngster, declares that he is afraid the use of a snap in delivering curves may have given the New York twirler a permanent injury. "All he could do was to lob them over," said Green. To this Clark Griffith added this safe reflection: "If Mathewson loses his ability to pitch it will be an exemplification of the old saying that a pitcher with speed is foolish to use curves."

Team of Veterans.

Wonder if this team of old men would finish last in any league? Mathewson, pitcher; Gibson, catcher; Hummel, first; Lajoie, second; Wagner, short; Wallace, third; Gravath, left; Leach, center, and Crawford, right.

Successful Manager.

Clark Griffith, the "Old Fox," says, to be successful, a major league manager must have the knack of patting a player on the back or hawling him out and getting results. He must be a student of human nature, says Griff.

Peevish Over Name.

Shortstop Halt of the Tip Tops, whose name was spelled "Holt" throughout the circuit during the early part of the spring, has converted the scribes to the correct method of spelling his handle.

Do Not All Shed Horns.

The elk, like all other members of the deer family, lose their horns every year. The hollow-horn animals, like the goats and antelopes, do not shed their horns.

The train leaves at 9:15 o'clock.

Delighted With Leo Schulz.

It was indeed a pity that more of Kingston's music loving people could not have heard Leo Schulz, violinist, Tuesday evening, at Kingston Opera House. As it was he was given a most cordial welcome by the audience, who sat charmed under his playing. That rare quality of the human voice, which may be elicited from the 'cello' by the artist, Mr. Schulz produces in a marked degree, making his instrument almost human in its beautiful singing. Again his playing is so delicate as to have the ethereal quality of the violin, and his technique is exquisite. Every number he played, the Chopin "Nocturne," the Paganini "Spinnelli," the Bach "Air," the Haydn "Serenade," or the Schubert "Moment Musical" was a musical gem, and in addition, Mr. Schulz's personality is such as to win all hearts. Being the artist he is, he dared to play Schumann's simple but lovely "Tranquillo," as an encore, and so tender and beautiful was the number that no sound save that of the music was heard in the auditorium. Henri Barron, the operatic tenor, was also well received. Doubtless his best number was the Aria, "Celeste Aida," from Verdi's "Aida," in which both the vocalization and dramatic presentation were excellent. The best that could be said for Miss Keon is that she seems to have decidedly mistaken her calling. Mr. Squires may have known how to play the piano, but so handicapped was he by the instrument he was forced to play upon, that no judgment could be passed upon his musicianship.

The Barber and the Furniture.

This morning Mrs. Ella Michaux of Saugerties road appeared before Recorder Lang and told a tale of how she had purchased furniture on Tuesday afternoon from a barber on Broadway near the Kingston Gas & Electric Company, but that when she went to get the furniture the barber had substituted other furniture in the place of that she had bought. She asked that a warrant be issued for the barber's arrest on a charge of petit larceny. The amount she paid for the furniture was $6.50. The warrant was issued and turned over to Sergeant Murray, who appeared with the barber about half an hour later. The barber, Sam Tartar, was arraigned before the bar of justice and told his side of the story. He said that he sold her the furniture as he was preparing to move. He denied that he had substituted other furniture. The furniture was at his house and Mrs. Michaux could get it there. After hearing Mr. Tartar's story the recorder discharged him, and informed Mrs. Michaux that any difficulty over the furniture could be thrashed out in city court if she desired.

ALLABEN.

Allaben, June 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown of Lindsley avenue, Kingston, enjoyed an automobile ride to Allaben Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Quimby and three daughters of Union Hill, N. J., are spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clearwater.

Miss Marietta Risely and James Risely of Cook's Falls are guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Risely.

Miss Grace MacGregor of Oneonta is a guest of Miss Ethel Peck.

Mrs. G. A. Van Keuren and daughter, Virginia, have returned to Kingston after a week's visit at G. F. Van Keuren's.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Meredith and daughter, who have a cottage at Big Indian, were guests at the Allaben Hotel Monday afternoon.

James Mahony of New York and Dr. More of Columbia College, New York city, are at the Allaben Hotel for their annual summer vacation.

Harry Linton is moving a few of his bungalows farther back in the mountains.

There will be an old fashioned celebration of Independence Day in both villages, Pine Hill and Phoenicia. Foot races, potato race, sack race, dancing, baseball and all sorts of attractions will celebrate the day.

St. Peter's Church Outing.

On Wednesday, July 28, the members of St. Peter's Church will hold their annual picnic and outing at Kingston Point. The children will be given a trolley ride to the point, where games will be played during the afternoon. In the evening a dance for the older folks will be held. Every effort will be made to make this one of the most successful outings ever held by the parish.

Chicquot Club

Pronounced Klee-ko
GINGER ALE
Is Good for the Kiddies

Chicquot is a deliciously sparkling, joyous ginger ale made of finest Jamaica ginger root, pure juices of lemon and limes, cane sugar and deep, bed-rock spring water, highly carbonated. It is stimulating, thirst quenching, brain clearing and taste pleasing.

The pure ginger stimulus makes it safe to drink when you are overheated. There is no saccharin in Chicquot—no cheap, harmful, coal-tar coloring matter, no soapy foam producers. It is not sold in five cent bottles on account of the cost of bottling and bottles. Every bottle of Chicquot holds two large glasses. You pay no more for Chicquot, but you do get ginger ale that is pure and safe for little children.

METHOD.

Method is the very hinge of business, and there is no method without punctuality. Punctuality is important because it subserves the peace and good temper of a family. Calmness of mind, which it produces, is another advantage of punctuality. A disorderly man is always in a hurry. He has no time to speak to you because he is going elsewhere, and when he gets there he is too late for his business or he must hurry away before he can finish it.

PHILOSOPHY.

Without philosophy we should be little above the animals that dig or erect their habitations, prepare their food in them, take care of their little ones in their dwellings and have besides the good fortune, which we have not, of being born already clothed.—Voltaire.

The Speed of Light.

Light holds the record for high speed among all moving things that have been measured. It travels at the rate of 325,028,800 yards a second. This is faster than thinking, even by the most quick witted person. Let any reader try to think the simplest thought and then with the aid of a stop watch note how long it has taken him to think it. He will then be able to understand how slow his mental operations are compared to the speed of light.

USEFULNESS.

It is a great satisfaction at the close of life to feel that you have lived not for yourself alone, but that you have been useful to others. You may be assured also that the same feeling is a source of comfort and happiness at any period of life. Nothing in this world is so good as usefulness. It tends to the improvement of your own character.

W. W. BUTLER.

RUSSIAN SHELL CONTRACT.

(W. W. Butler.)

Wilson W. Butler, of Montreal, vice president of the Canadian Steel Foundries, Ltd., and the Canadian Car and Foundry Company, has arrived from Europe with a fat Russian contract for shells and a disposition to ignore J. P. Morgan and Company as the fiscal agents of the British government on this continent.

Mr. Butler says he has eight idle plants which will be put to work as rapidly as possible to turn out the 5,000,000 shells for the Russian government. He added that Britain has not treated Canada fairly in the matter of contracts for war munitions, but he believes the Canadians will fare better now that D. A. Thomas, the Welsh coal king, is coming to this continent to represent the British government in the matter.

Trap For Quotation Experts.

If any one wants a catch question to spring on a gathering of self confessed literary sharps let him ask whence comes the quotation, "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." This is one of the six best sellers in the world of quotations, yet not one person in a hundred knows where it comes from. It is comparatively easy to guess the author, but almost impossible to find a person who can name the work.

One could build any number of parlor games around "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." Try it.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Newer if Not Better.

"Can't you use a less hackneyed expression than 'He hiked for the tall and uncultured timber?'" asked the editor. "Well," said the young reporter, "I might say 'He beat it to the forest reserves, where the weeping willows have never had their eyelashes trimmed.'"—Boston Truth.

Rained Pitchforks.

"Did you ever see it rain pitchforks here?" asked the city man in the country.

"Sure," replied the farmer. "My neighbors gave me a pitchfork 'shower' when I was married."—Yonkers Statesman.

WAGNER PLEADS FOR NEW YORK INTERESTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 30.—At the opening of the constitutional convention today Delegate Robert F. Wagner, New York, objected to the receipt of an adverse report from the committee on legislation, of a proposal by Delegate Morgan J. O'Brien which eliminates from the present constitution the provision restricting and limiting the representation of the city of New York in the legislature.

Mr. Wagner favored passing the proposed amendment.

"It is incumbent upon you," he told the delegates, "as draughtsmen of the people to submit to them an apportionment article which recognizes the equal rights of the people, be they in the minority or the majority, be they urban or rural, be they Democrats or Republicans."

"If I am a judge of public sentiment I believe that this body is charged, by a clearly expressed public feeling which cannot be disregarded, with rectifying the injustices of the inequities resident in the apportionment provisions of the present constitution. The people of the city of New York, too long deprived of fair representation, are watching with grave concern the proceedings of this convention."

"Thus far in our proceedings, I regret to say, the protest from New York has received little consideration, for with the boldness of a Captain Kidd your committee has favorably reported a proposed amendment which strengthens instead of eliminates the discriminations against our city, by providing that all five counties of the city together, no matter how much their population shall increase, shall never have more than one-half of the membership of the state legislature. The proposal is so contemptuous that I cannot believe a convention, composed of the character of the men that are here, will mar their whole record by adopting it."

"How repugnant to the ideals of our country are these gerrymandering provisions, how inconsistent with justice, how destructive of true government, how defiant of the popular will. This convention could do no nobler or more patriotic act than to disregard the adverse report upon Judge O'Brien's proposed amendment than to adopt it by an overwhelming vote, thus turning their back upon shameful partisanship."

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The matter of proving the will of Jeanette V. Edgerton has been adjourned before Surrogate GH in the surrogate's court until July 12.

The matter of the judicial settlement of the estate of George F. Loughlin of this city was adjourned to July 13.

The Time to Swat the Fly Is Now

DURING a few warm days a few rubies in a heap in or out of the dwelling becomes a hatchery for myriads of young flies not only to be condemned as a nuisance, but exterminated utterly, if possible, when we consider that they may and often do carry into the household the disease germs of infantile paralysis and typhoid fever and no food in the house is safe from their attack.

Holland's Great Cheese Mart.

At Alkman, the principal cheese market of Holland, may be seen the quaint old weigh house, erected in 1582. Connected with the town clock in the tower of this building hangs one of those tinkling chimes which plays a melody even stranger than those heard in Amsterdam. It is in this building that all of the cheeses are brought from the square in front to be officially weighed before they are delivered to the purchaser and stored away in the packets or barges waiting near by in the canal.

HOW SATISFACTORILY TO ADD TO YOUR SUPPLY OF TOWELS.

The woman who likes hand work can do no better than to make a supply of guest towels. Each is a small amount of work, and yet when they are grouped in half dozen lots they appear to be an accomplishment of no meaness.

An interesting finish for a guest towel was devised by a woman who had received a gift of some linen handkerchiefs finished with a little colored crocheted edge. She edged towel ends in the same way, using a heavy twisted mercerized floss in various colors for the purpose. A third of an inch from the ends of the towels, made of huckaback, two or three threads were drawn, and the crocheted hook, of steel, was worked into this space. A plot edge was crocheted all across the end of the towel, and above it was placed a letter in the same color as the edge in satin stitch or cross stitch. These towels were decidedly effective and are not difficult to make.

Cross stitch designs of all sorts are still used on guest towels. Nothing is prettier than the wreath of blue, pink, green and yellow worked in cross stitch. There are also effective baskets and other conventional figures.

Special little towels are made for babies, and some of these show rabbits or chickens or ducks outlined in a panel at one edge, with the background formed of colored threads run into the huckaback.

ICEBOX PERIL.

How to Keep the Refrigerator Sweet and Clean at All Times.

Mrs. Housewife, in just what condition do you find the refrigerator you are using this season?

Three things must be found in a perfect refrigerating plant, and these much reach further than the ice chest. The plant must be sanitary, efficient and economical.

First, one must see that the box is properly placed, preferably in a light, airy place, and that the drainpipe is properly connected. Many builders do not give this any consideration, and many housewives do not seem to care where the pipe leads or into what it drains, only that it "goes" somewhere and thus does away with the "pan under the icebox." Far better a pan that runs over periodically than a drip pipe connected with a foul drain or sewer that will flood the box with sewer gas and poison its contents.

If the box is wood give it an "air bath" inside and out. Open all doors and dry every part before cleaning, then give it a thorough scrubbing with hot water, soap and borax. Remove shelves and allow box to cool and dry before using.

If the shelves are wood care must be exercised, for in these damp, water soaked shelves lurk bacteria. These invisible foes are difficult to destroy, and it is only by constant vigilance you combat them.

Wooden shelves absorb odors, and once they become impregnated with these it is almost impossible to get rid of them. If one must use wooden shelves give them an air and heat bath at least very week. Remove shelves and set at once in boiling water, keep at boiling point thirty minutes, set in hot oven for an hour and then rub all over with a solution of formaldehyde, wipe dry and put in sun for several hours.

Metal shelves with heavy coating of enamel are safe and easily taken care of.

Keeping all corners and sides, as well as dishes used, perfectly dry and clean; keeping the temperature of the box at a low degree and the air dry, will lessen the danger from bacteria.

See that food is put at once in the refrigerator. If this is left out to be nibbled by the fly that has come from some fever infested spot covered with germs, some of these must necessarily adhere to the damp surface of the meat. The cold in the box is powerless to stop the growth of germs, it can only retard it, and sooner or later the food becomes unfit for use.

Foods cooked or uncooked should not "stand around" the kitchen, but should be put at once in the cooling room of the refrigerator.

Partly decayed food should never be placed in the refrigerator. You do not succeed in "keeping" it, and you fill the food compartment with the bacteria laden air that settles upon the food in the box.

How to Use Some Simple Beauty Remedies Successfully.

Stains on the fingers that will not yield to ordinary methods can be removed by dipping the fingers in peroxide of hydrogen.

A healing ointment for rough skin is made by mixing thoroughly one part of bismuth to three parts of white vaseline.

Select a soap that has little alkali and no coloring in it. The best is also unperfumed. Such a soap will not harm the most delicate skin.

The constant use on the teeth of powdered charcoal or pumice stone is injurious, as such powders break the enamel, and the teeth will then quickly decay.

The greatest care should be taken of the teeth. Equal parts of castile soap, powdered orris root and precipitated chalk make a good and inexpensive tooth powder.

Neutrality.

"Yes'm."

"Didn't you protest?"

"Yes'm, and then—then both of 'em hit me."—Buffalo Express.

THE CIGARETTE BEETLE.

This Tough Little Pest Will Flourish Even in Cayenne Pepper.

A tiny but withal practically omnivorous little fellow, the cigarette beetle is known to science as Lasioderma serricorne. It is common in nearly all tropical and subtropical countries, and, as a sample of its catholic tastes, we may mention that it will breed in raisins, rhubarb, cayenne pepper, rice, ginger, dried fish, upholstery, ergot, turnerite, books, cane work, gun wads, liquorice, saffron, belladonna and in pyrethrum powder strong enough to kill cockroaches—a varied catalogue to be sure. It is chiefly a pest of tobacco, in various forms, however, that the cigarette beetle has become notorious. The greatest damage is done to the wrappers of cigars and cigarettes, through which it eats small holes.

The larvae live upon the tobacco leaf, and a very interesting fact is that the size of the adult beetles, into which the larvae eventually develop depends not only on the quantity, but also on the quality, of tobacco that has been devoured in the immature stages. Experiment has shown that in every case beetles obtained from selected cigars were double the size of those from low grade tobacco. It will be remembered that the cheese "skipper" is partial to the better cheeses; similarly, the cigarette beetle is somewhat of a connoisseur, for given a free choice cigarettes are always the first to be infested, while cheap grade tobacco and cigars kept in the same room will remain uninfested for years.

Apart from the actual destruction of the tobacco leaf, the larvae spoil its aroma and accordingly depreciate its value. It is some consolation to know that the adults themselves do no damage. This little beetle is most difficult to eradicate, and, to that end, an experimental X ray machine was specially built at great expense in America. The machine was to be capable of "sterilizing" cigars on a commercial scale, at the rate of 40,000 a day; voltages of 64,000 to 75,000 and exposures as long as an hour were tried without the slightest effect upon eggs, larvae, pupae or adults—the experiment was a failure—"Insects and Man," by C. A. Ealand.

A day will come when war shall seem as impossible between Paris and London, between Petersburg and Berlin, as between Boston and Philadelphia.

A day will come when bullets and bombs shall be replaced by ballots, by the universal suffrage of the people, by the sacred arbitrament of a great sovereign senate, which shall be to Europe

Too Costly.

King George II. once wished to add the Green park, in London, to his palace grounds, whether the people liked it or not. He inquired of his minister as to the cost.

His lordship, mindful of the general discontent then prevalent, answered: "The cost, sir? Oh, it would be a matter of three crowns!"

The king took the hint. The people kept their park and the sovereign his triple throne.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 30.—From pebbles, to feathers, to gutta percha to rubber core—that's the history of the evolution of a golf ball.

Back in the dear old days that are dead, embalmed and probably petrified, the golfing persons used to swat a round pebble. Every swat used to produce a sting that was telegraphed along the shaft of the club to the mitts of the golfer. A sting causes pain and pain usually provokes profanity.

In the day and age the clerical persons are inclined to look with horror upon the "average golfer" because he curses ever and anon. They think it's the golfer's fault and his individual sin. But it isn't. The golfer can't help cursing because it's heredity. The cursing habit had come down from his cursing ancestors. A fellow can't duck heredity, can he?

Well, along about 1652 A. D. a golfing geezer, of an inventive turn of mind, decided to quit cursing. Probably he was nearing the end of life and was repentant. So he invented the feather ball as the one way of playing golf without risking the chance of getting a job in the hereafter under the boss rule of a party named Lucifer.

The feather ball, a few samples of which are still alive but returned to museums and curio collections, was about the same size as the golf ball of today and a trifle heavier. It was made thusly: Three strips of leather, which served as the cover, were sewed together. A small space was left unsewed. This enabled the maker to turn the cover side out so as to get the rough stitching inside.

Having been turned inside out, the ball was ready for stuffing. Feathers were jammed into the opening and packed with a sharp stick. A two quart measure of feathers usually was required to stuff one of those golf balls. One feather isn't a dangerous weapon, but two quarts of feathers jammed into a space the size of a golf ball is something else again. The feather ball in those days when properly propelled could have knocked out Jess Williams should he stick his concrete jaw in its feathery path.

The feather ball continued in force until about 1840. Then a Scot caddy revolutionized things again. He found a discarded football shoe that had a gutta percha sole. Business was poor that day and not having any wood to whittle he carved away on the sole. After a time it struck him that the sole might be rolled together and made into a ball.

The caddy soaked the sole, rolled it together, tied it with a string and went golfing with it the next day. He got some great distances on his drives, the golfers took cognizance of it—and the gutta percha ball came into existence.

The best part of the gutta percha affair was that its cost was only about one-tenth of that of a feather one. The next best feature was that the wind didn't hamper the flight of the gutta percha affair, as sometimes was the case with the feather ball.

It was in 1848 that the rubber cored ball came into existence in the United States. The golfers in this land of the free and the neutral went into raptures about its great improvement over the gutta percha ball. But jolly old England, y'no, and Scotland, too, couldn't "see" the "bally, bloomin' Yankee device" until 1905. And then a gent named Alec Hard opened the Briton peepers. He used an American rubber cored ball in the British Open Championship and won easily, because he was able to get tremendous distances in his drives.

Tom Bendelow of Chicago owns one of the feather balls. He bought it up at a bargain price. Since then he has refused offers of $100 and more, made by golfing fanatics.

The ball that Bendelow has is more than 100 years old—may be 200 years old—but it still is in good shape. It is almost as solid as a piece of rock. Bendelow often has yearned to take the ball on a course and try it out in a game.

"The ball looks as if it still could stand a lot more batting," said Bendelow, "but I hate to take a chance on it."
